

Molly Kauper
Grade 5
Highlands School
Birmingham, AL

Droplets on the Car Window

As the rain falls,
tiny droplets cling to the window.
With every bump,
they scootch along
like a marching band,
parading in unison across the glass.
The wind tries to push them back,
but they stay together.
Occasionally,
one slips away,
but new ones come
as the rain falls.